Conundrum: Which of the two is the biggest falsifier? Both are lying, but which is telling the tallest one?

The little steamer Taber is not coming on the southern coast route, after all. Her owner is receiving $3,000 per month not to run her on the northern coast route, and he has probably made a like contract with the companies running down this way. An income of $6,000 per month from a little old tub that could not earn half that amount on a monopoly route can only be made by a man of considerable business tact. The money, however, comes out of the people in the shape of high freights and fares.

The defense of the State University Regents is hardly as strong as proofs of Holy Writ. The strong card played is the incompetency of Professor CARR. One need not go into the case very deep to discover the weakness of this point in the argument. Professor CARR held the position from which he has just been expelled, for five years, during which time he was in direct communication with, and often under the eye of the Regents. That it took them five years to discover his incompetency is no credit to their judgment and discrimination. It is, however, an evidence of their own incapacity, and every mother's son of them should be removed on a charge of general stupidity.

Our esteemed evening cotemporary has closed on its seventh volume. The Express is a pleasant little sheet which one can read through by a lighted match. It is fussy, conceited, superficial and politically unreliable. It claims to receive telegraphic dispatches but unless there is some delay in the mails the Bulletin which reaches here at one forty, contains the same dispatches only better arranged and more in detail than appear in the Express one hour and a half later. Its local news is a moderately well condensed summary of the morning papers. It expresses the opinion of its publishers and its course is approved by the gentlemen who manage it. It is not much of a newspaper and its limited number of readers do not expect much of it. Its chief characteristic is an inordinate jealousy of the Herald; still we like the Express.

Gold Mines.

The foreman of the Castae Mining Company was in the city yesterday, and brought the most encouraging news from the mines. He reports that the location of the ditch places the line on higher and far more favorable ground than the company expected. The ditch runs entirely above the side gulches which the company was preparing to pipe or dume and this will save nearly half the anticipated expense of the ditch. But what is still better news, he says the ditch will pass a beautiful gravel bed rich in gold within one mile of its head. The Secretary of the company has employed an additional force of hands which goes up to-day, taking tools and provisions to last thirty days. The foreman promises to have the first mile of the ditch ready for use in one month. When this mile is completed they will commence washing the first gravel bed. This looks like business.

Hair-Splitting Law.

The defective indictment and consequent verdict of "not guilty" in the case of the people against McDONALD has created no small degree of astonishment and anxiety in this community. Coming, as this "not guilty" does, on the heels of a somewhat similar escape from punishment in the case of CARR and combined with the fact that the leaders of a mob which hanged some twelve or fifteen Chinamen escaped the full sentence of the court through a technicality of our hair-splitting law, people are justified in expressing doubts as to the probability of our laws and the possibility of our Courts meeting out justice while guided by a God so exact in its requirements that the extreme measure of human wisdom, the fullest standard of legal attainments and the utmost care and caution will not suffice to convict a man who, in the presence of any number of witnesses, stabs his wife to death. Nothing offers a greater inducement to the people to take the law in their own hands than a consciousness that the law of the land is insufficient for the full protection of life and property. The escape of a few such red-handed monsters as this man McDONALD through professional quibbles and legal niceties, shatters the faith of the entire community in the ability and integrity of the administrators of the law and in the power and efficiency of the law itself. When this faith is once shattered, the instinct of self-preservation begins to assert itself, and then it is but a step to that condition of society when offenders against common justice are found suspended from lamp-posts and hanging from the limbs of trees. It cannot be denied that inexcusable carelessness is apparent in the drawing up of the indictment against McDONALD, but as we cannot see that good will result from it, we shall leave personal animadversions on the District

Attorney and his Deputy to others, and turn to the law which makes seemingly unimportant errors loopholes for the escape of criminals. The tendency of the law which now fills our statute books is not so much to protect the innocent and defend the right, as to show the fine-drawn points our law-makers are able to whittle out. These sharp points have pricked the mind of the Supreme Court so full of holes that its decisions, so far from holding water, will not hold horse-thieves and murderers amenable for their atrocities. The law is a tissue of hair-splitting niceties and the Supreme Court reports are full of contradictory decisions. No one understands the law and every lawyer interprets it to suit the case in hand. There is no legal policy to be found in the Supreme Court reports, and no lawyer is discouraged when a decision is rendered against him, for by the light of the past he is justified in anticipating a contradictory decision before the close of the next term. So far as the end of justice is concerned in the case of McDONALD all that is necessary is to establish the fact that he killed his wife—that he is the man who murdered the woman—and any law making the substitution of a wrong name or the mis-spelling of a word, a bar to the attainment of this end is wanting in common sense and the principles of right and justice. The enactment of such laws do not tend to the protection of the commonwealth. On the contrary, they defeat the purpose for which all law is designed. Conviction for capital offense is becoming more difficult day by day. The law is so full of quibbles and quibbles that the offenders do not fear and the people do not expect conviction. How much further we can go in this direction depends upon the patience of the people and the provocation they have to take the law in their own hands. The guilty cannot always go unwhipped of justice. If the law carries them through the courts they cannot escape the vengeance of an outraged and long suffering people.

Light on the Subject.

Professor CARR has published a long reply to the defense of the Regents. It is a strong document—doubly strong from the fact that it exposes and proves something like epiphany on the part of certain members of the Board. We refer to the matter now in order to place before our readers a letter from Hon. A. HIGBIE, Assemblyman from this county which explains how the Regents prevented the passage of a bill which would have changed, if not entirely prevented the carrying out of the programme then marked out by the Board. Near the close of the legislative session, the House Committee on Education reported a bill embodying their views on the changes which should be made in the management of the University. Why this bill did not become a law is explained by Mr. HIGBIE, Chairman of the Committee, in the following communication to W. H. BAXTER, one of the Grange memorialists, after the Regents had asked for Professor CARR's resignation. The letter bears date of July 30th 1874 and does credit to Mr. HIGBIE's head and heart. It reads as follows:

When the bill proposing a radical change in the Board of Regents was introduced and referred to the Committee on Education, Regent Dwinelle and others were very active for and against it. I had a lengthy conversation with Dwinelle in which he admitted that he and other Regents had been opposed to Professor CARR but since the investigation of the University matters before the committee at Sacramento, he and other Regents were fully satisfied with him, believing that the cause of the University and the State would be promoted by his retention. While he admitted the justice of the bill, he thought that enough had been said and done for one session, and that much had already been said and done, and that the cause of the University and the State would be promoted by his retention. He thought that enough had been said and done for one session, and that much had already been said and done, and that the cause of the University and the State would be promoted by his retention. He thought that enough had been said and done for one session, and that much had already been said and done, and that the cause of the University and the State would be promoted by his retention.

In a few moments after this conversation with Regent Dwinelle, Alfred A. Cohen of Alameda county, was waiting an interview on the same subject, viz: Professor CARR and the University. Our conversation was very much like that between myself and Regent Dwinelle. He said that he was prepared to say that the people of the State should be fully kept in the confidence of the friends of the bill will not urge it, if not, it will pass in less than one hour. I replied: "Judge, if you feel free to say that I will say it." I feel free to say that it will. I repeat, as we understand, that the cause of the University, but for the credit of the Regents.

Shooting Scrape—Suicide.

VIRGINIA, Sept. 27.—A lively shooting scrape occurred out on the Divide yesterday morning between two brothers-in-law, respectively named John Fallman and Augustus Ward. Five or six shots were exchanged, but the Fallmans were the victors, but producing only a scalp wound. Ward then ran away and has so far escaped capture by the officers who were in pursuit of him. The trouble arose out of some domestic difficulty between Ward and his wife. The latter had left him and was staying with her sister, but she was followed by Ward, who threatened to kill her on sight.

Thomas Kane, who was confined in the County Jail and was supposed to be insane, committed suicide last evening by strangling himself with his suspenders. He leaves a family, who reside at Gold Hill.

Sam Goulding has sold his stage line to Sulphur Springs out to Brigham & Crossan, who will now run a daily line through to Wilbur Springs and the quicksilver mines.

The Efforts to Compromise the Louisiana Troubles.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—A New Orleans dispatch says the proposition of the Conservatives, which is said to have been accepted, was that General Longstreet and Duncan F. Kenner retire from the Retiring Board, but it is not determined who of the other side will fill the vacancies. It is understood that if the compromise is adopted, the registration and election will be carried on under the supervision of an informal Advisory Board, to be comprised of U. S. Marshal Packard, B. F. Johnston and M. P. Bonas, Republicans, and ex-Lieutenant-Governor A. Voorhies and Major Ed. A. Burke, Conservatives. The McEnery people say this is a forlorn hope, as enough frauds to beat them have already been committed in the registration, but they are determined to fight every step. It is still believed by many that although the compromise is agreed upon, it cannot be carried into effect. Longstreet and Kenner will not resign. The Board is in violation of law, as it is composed entirely of Republicans. The Conservatives asked that three members resign and that their places be filled with two Conservatives, while the fifth member should be a Republican acceptable to both parties. This the Republicans declined to do, insisting upon having three of their own choice, but agreed to comply with the letter, not the spirit, of the law by giving the opposition two members. On this point the conference was broken up, but the Conservatives proposed that it be re-opened, feeling as they are going into the election, it is better to have two members from none. The Republicans show a willingness to go ahead upon the basis of this concession.

Senator West vs. Gov. Kellogg. NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Senator West of Louisiana has made public a letter, dated Sept. 27th and addressed to Collector Case of New Orleans, on the political affairs of the State Government—Kellogg's abandonment of the State executive office on the occasion of the Penn revolution and the Governor's imputation of "intentional" to the North at his written request, to lay before the President the condition of affairs in Louisiana and to solicit Federal support for his government, when its integrity should be imperiled. If he wants his political friends who are absent to assume the fighting game, they might prefer some other leader. Generally, the Kellogg administration, since it came into power, has been exercised in true interests of the State. It is envied the stoutest heart, and it has received such a shock as to make its most determined supporters doubt whether he is competent to exact obedience to its authorities, even with the assistance of the parent government.

In regard to the recent conference, Senator West says: "Propositions looking to the avoidance of fraud in elections, though eminently just and by all means to be adopted, should be preceded by a promise and guarantee on the part of the Democrats to prevent murder, protect life, assure and admit full expressions of opinion, and to abstain from all intimidation of the colored people."

The Compromise. NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 28.—The following agreement has been made between the Committee of Conference and two political parties: The Committee representing the Conservative and People's Party pledge themselves to discontinue all threats and intimidation of any kind throughout the State, and to assist the constituted authorities in maintaining peace and to insure a strictly fair and impartial registration and election; also to discontinue all acts of threats, personal violence, and improper influences to control the will of the electors, and to render assistance and use every effort to suppress acts of violence or intimidation. In order to insure a fair registration and election, the committee composed of five members, Albert Voorhies and E. S. Burke were selected by the representatives of the Conservative and People's Party, and S. B. Packard and B. F. Johnston, selected by the Republican party. They jointly selected their advisory committee to supervise and carry out registration throughout the State in behalf of all parties to the full extent of all their powers and suggestions of the Advisory Committee, so far as such advice and suggestions are permitted by the existing laws of the State. It was agreed that two persons be named by the representatives of the Conservative and People's Parties who are to be elected according to law to fill two vacancies which will be created by the registrations in the returning Board within twenty days.
